SIXTH FORM COLLEGE

Creating Futures Together

Our Visions and Commitment

Croydon College and Coulsdon Sixth Form College are excited to announce their proposal to merge to create a stronger offer to the communities we serve in both Croydon, Coulsdon and the wider area.

We are pleased to have the opportunity to seek your view of our proposed partnership, the result of which will be two Colleges, both rated 'Good' by Ofsted, continuing as one legal entity with one Governing Body and one Chief Executive Officer. We believe this will create a financially resilient and sustainable organisation allowing us to continue to meet the needs of our students, employers and the communities we serve.

Together our focus will be on delivering excellent and sustainable education and training as part of a coherent post 16 educational offer to the residents of Croydon, Coulsdon and beyond, ensuring that our students develop the skills, qualifications and behaviours they need to thrive and prosper.

“Together we have greater capacity to ensure our students continue to be successful, we will be more resilient and have greater scope to invest, increasing our capacity to innovate and respond effectively to local and regional needs”.

- Caireen Mitchell, Principal & CEO of Croydon College and Steve Gooch & Richard Beales, Heads of Coulsdon College

Background

The merger is a positive and proactive step on the part of the governing bodies to secure a strong future for further education in Croydon and surrounding boroughs. Individually each college has a successful history of supporting their student body to achieve their best, to gain the skills, behaviours and qualifications they need to prosper. Each has worked hard to ensure that they meet the needs of the communities they serve.

At the same time there has been significant change in the Post 16 education sector in recent years:

- Government spending cuts and policy has led to consolidation of the sector into fewer, larger, more resilient and efficient colleges;
- We have had significant curriculum change as we introduced Study Programmes, and English and Maths for all students who have not gained high grades in GCSE.
- There is more curriculum change on the way with the introduction of Technical qualifications across 15 pathways, requiring significant levels of work experience.
- The Government has undertaken major reforms of the Apprenticeship system including the Levy for large Employers
- There has been a policy shift towards technical and vocational qualifications
- The Adult Skills Budget is due to be devolved in London and other designate cities.
